

Workshop on Digitisation and Conservation for Library staff

15th June 2018, 10.00 AM -2.00 PM

JDMC, Library Reading Room

Libraries are the focal points of tertiary education institutions like University of Delhi and its affiliated colleges. Yet, to stay relevant in the constantly evolving academic spaces, libraries and their staff must keep abreast of the innovations and new techniques that are being introduced constantly.

JDMC-IQAC, in an attempt to inculcate and encourage quality in all aspects of the college life, has organised a workshop on Digitisation and Conservation to upgrade the knowledge and skill set of the library staff. Digitisation of libraries is increasingly becoming the norm in libraries across the world, so it makes sense that our library staff should also learn new skills; while conservation continues to be an essential aspect of maintaining the library and its bibliographic treasures.

Dr. Pratapanand Jha, Director (Cultural Informatics), Indira Gandhi National Centre for Arts (IGNCA), has generously consented to spare some valuable time to teach the library staff about Digitisation and Conservation in the course of this workshop. For those desirous of learning more and getting some hands-on training in these skills, follow-up practical training sessions will be arranged in collaboration with Dr. Jha, the IGNCA and JDMC-IQAC at mutually convenient time.

JDMC-IQAC expects that this workshop will not only upgrade the skills of the library staff, but also encourage them to strive for professional excellence hereafter.
