SEMINAR BY DR. RAVINDRA GARIMELLA

TOPIC : Constitutional Values and Fundamental Duties

TIME : 11am onwards

DATE : 12th February, 2024

VENUE : Seminar Room

DESCRIPTION : On 12th February , Department of Political Science of Janki Devi Memorial College under the aegis of IQAC organized a seminar on the topic ‘Constitutional Values and Fundamental Duties’. The session commenced with the felicitation of Dr. Ravindra Garimella by Prof. Poonam Kanwal. The guest speaker began with the comparison of success of democracy in India with other nations. Delving into the glimpses of debates on the Universal Adult Franchise, he provided insights on Objective Resolution which is responsible behind the formation of Preamble of Indian Constitution. Discussing the motion being moved in the Constituent Assembly by Jawaharlal Nehru, he reflected the values enshrined in the Indian Constitution. Moving upon the Fundamental duties, he talked about them being present in Mahatma Gandhi’s teachings. Though the Fundamental Duties were incorporated by the 42nd Constitutional Amendment, in 1976 in the Constitution of India, he provided their sight in the Constituent Assembly’s discussion. He also praised Delhi University for having Constitutional Values and Fundamental Duties as Value Addition Course (VAC) as it would help the youth to know the intricacies during the formation of the Indian Constitution. Finally, he focused upon the vital role amendment plays in making Constitution neither flexible nor rigid at the same time.

The seminar was a great opportunity to know about the moral values present in the Indian Constitution. It concluded with an open floor for questions and with a vote of thanks by the President.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Beginning with the values imbibed in the Constitution at the time of the it's making, the session provided with the importance of amendment in order to make the Constitution more value centric in its approach with the passage of time. Adding on the inclusion of Fundamental Duties in the Constitution, the moral values they demarcate besides being non-enforceable in court of law.

RELEVANCE WITH SUBJECT: Constitutional Government and Democracy in India.

TOPIC : Healing: Dealing with negative emotions

TIME : 11am onwards

DATE : 5th February, 2024

VENUE : Room no. 66

DESCRIPTION : On 5th February , Department of Political Science of Janki Devi Memorial College under the aegis of IQAC organized a seminar on the topic ‘Healing: Dealing with negative emotions’. The session commenced with Ms. Lavanya Shukla ,the founder of Unwind Delhi , giving an overview of the organization. Mrs. Millin Singha Gujral , a psychologist and guest speaker took the floor next, delving into the realm of emotions. She began by highlighting the various types of emotions with specific focus on negative ones we often confront. She provided the students few ways to deal with such negative emotions faced in our daily lives. The initial step mentioned by her was recognizing emotions by emphasizing self – awareness to understand our feelings. Mrs. Millin also stated the importance of focusing on our reactions by practicing mindfulness. She stressed the importance of seeking support by communicating with others. Finally, she made the session more interesting by engaging the students in an activity. With eyes closed they were asked to observe any discomfort in their body and assigning a color to it. She then encouraged them to transform that color into white. The seminar was a great opportunity to know about the techniques and therapies for managing negative emotions. It concluded with an open floor for questions and with a vote of thanks by the Vice – President.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: It provided practical insights and tools for effectively managing negative emotions. Students learned about some practical strategies for coping with stress and anxiety, transforming negative thought patterns, and improving communication of emotions. The session emphasized the need of self-awareness, mindfulness techniques, and reducing the stigma around mental health. Students also gained learning insights for accessing professional help when needed, contributing to the development of a positive and resilient mindset.

EDUCATIONAL TRIP TO OP JINDAL GLOBAL UNIVERSITY

Name of the event:	Educational Trip to OP Jindal Global University, Sonipat, Haryana
Name of the organizer (s):	Department of Political Science
Type of event:	Educational
Objectives of the event:	To have a guided campus tour and interactive session

Department of Political Science of Janki Devi Memorial College under the supervision of Mr. Ahirrao Dinesh Bharat, Dr. Poonam Khatana, Ms. Shalini Singh and Mr. Rohit Singh planned an educational trip to OP Jindal Global University, Sonipat, Haryana on 24th January 2024.

It commenced with breakfast which was arranged by the university. Subsequently, students gathered in the auditorium for an enlightening session where they were provided with career guidance specifically on the subjects of law and behavioral sciences during the session. The students were received by Mr. Vinod Madan (General Secretary of OP Jindal Global University). They were briefed about the history, the global rankings and the multi-disciplinary nature of the institution by Mr Anand Prakash Mishra (Director of Law Admissions at OP Jindal Global University). Another faculty, Dr. Bhasker Malu (Assistant Professor in Behavioral Sciences) provided the inter-linkage between policy making and behavioral sciences followed up by suitable successful examples from the past. With this, the floor was opened for questions where students and faculty members participated enthusiastically. The most engrossing point was the campus tour to acquaint students with the infrastructure and facilities of the university. Furthermore, the day was wrapped up by the lunch provided to students.

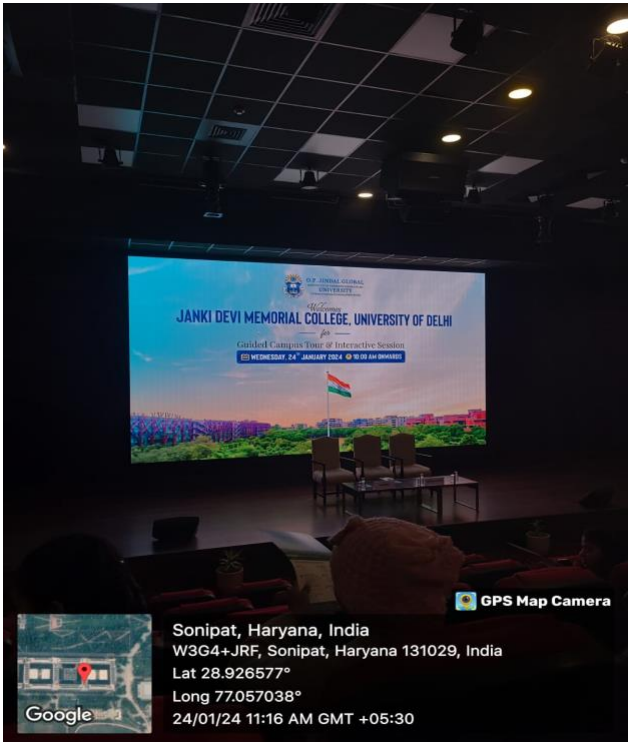

It was a great opportunity for the students for networking and making interactions which provided them with insightful information and exploration of OP Jindal Global University.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Students were provided career guidance about different strata of subjects. They gained insights into diverse academic disciplines, explored the campus facilities, and engaged learning through demonstrations. The visit also offered valuable networking opportunities, allowing students to connect with faculty, professionals, and peers. Exposure to the university's research initiatives enhanced students' awareness of academic and ethical considerations. The trip encouraged students to reflect on their experiences, identifying potential areas of interest and relevance to their future educational and career paths.

Community Engagement with the Elderly

Department of Political Science, Janki Devi Memorial College has conducted a workshop on 'Community Engagement with the Elderly' organized by the Centre for Extension & Outreach on 12th Jan, 2024 on the occasion of National Youth Day. Students of the department shared their experiences on the moments spent with elderly people at home, in the community or at an old age home. The initiative proved well to fill the youth-old bond with love and compassion where the former realised the importance of the latter in the society.

The experiences shared by the students are as follows:

Date: January 25, 2023

Place: Home

Regretfully, on this day, I celebrated my grandpa's birthday with him for the last time before his passing. However, his words, deeds, and legacy will always be with me and in my heart. As a result of his love for family get-togethers, my grandfather was always successful in fostering unity within the family. He held the view that solid family relationships could only arise from emotional and mental connections. I've learned a lot from my grandfather. It was on this specific day that his health was not particularly good.

Even though he wasn't feeling well and couldn't work like a regular person, he was thrilled that day because it was his birthday and was able to stand up on his knees. It was the day when I understood how small things can bring someone joy and cause them to stand up on their knees in spite of being quite ill. My grandfather taught me the value of life by appreciating the small things in life and by embracing and appreciating what we have now.

Had a heartwarming conversation with an old women who loved talking to us. And then we asked about their experiences of their daily life. What they love to do in their daily life and how and with whom they like to spend their time. They enjoy their daily life and are happy in their life. We loved to get to know about their way of spending life and their point of view on youth , love , world and aging in general.

Spent time with my paternal and maternal grandmothers. I asked about their experiences of life and how it has changed with the advent of old age. I was more astonished by the friendship that they both have built with each other. They said care and selflessness is what builds the bonds. Afterwards they massaged my hair and we all ate Maggie together as they love it. Blessed with the best.

I visited the local slums of my hometown deoghar, jharkhand. Various people put up their tents and live on the streets. I try to help these poor people every year in some way or the other, usually by donating clothes.

In this picture as well I am donating woollen clothes to the elderly people living on the streets. By talking to them we got to know that these are people who sell baskets made out of jute and use the bare minimum earned from this to fill their stomach. They also said that people are not very supportive of them and that they do not buy their products often which increases their struggle more and more.

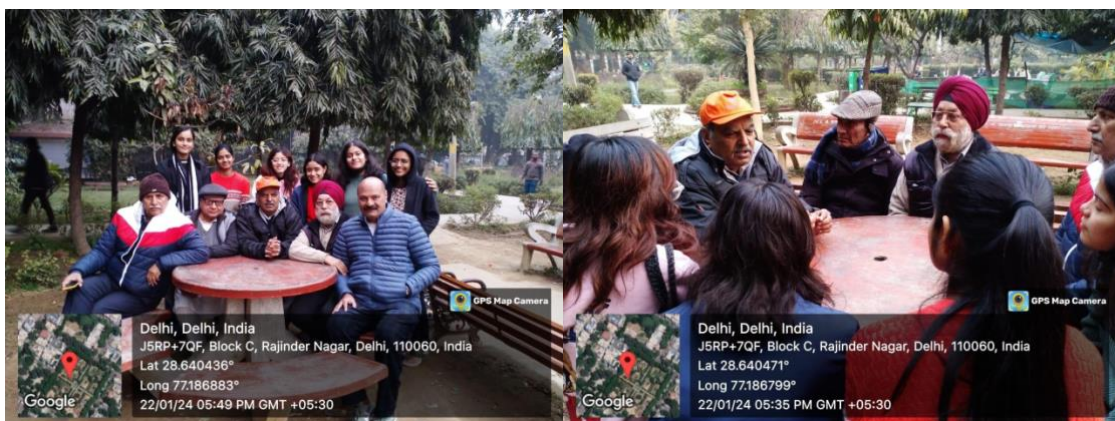

Date : 21 January, 2023
Place: College Campus

Had a heartwarming conversation with the non- teaching staff we found just outside the hostel who loved talking to us. We asked about their experience of working in this prestigious institution, if they enjoy it, what they love about it the most and how they look back at the years they've spent here. They shared with us their idea of living the life to the fullest, what mistakes not to do, not run behind anything, let go of things that hurt us, learn, grow and enjoy the youth and not worry about the future. We loved to get to know about them and their way of spending life, their point of view on youth, love, world and aging in general.

The elderly population faces challenges related to social isolation and limited community involvement, impacting their overall quality of life. Effective community engagement is crucial to addressing these issues and promoting a supportive and inclusive environment. Similar steps were taken by our department by encouraging students to take part in Community First Initiative , an outreach activity in association with National Community Engagement Academic Network organized by Janki Devi Memorial College.

On January 22, 2024 , four to five people from the Political Science Department visited a park where we interacted with a group of elderly people from our community. While we were communicating with them, they gave us their live through advices in regards to our career, peer pressure, handling stress, about depression and anxiety, and how to become independent.

These elderly people even explained to us the importance of unity and togetherness. They say Sticks in a bundle are unbreakable . They gave us life advice, shared their life experiences and interacted with us joyfully.

The conversation was very interactive and they had actively taken part in it.

I have been talking to my landlord, aunt, every night for the last one month. She was paralyzed last month and her health was not so good. I daily talk to her after my dinner. I daily ask her about her health and what she had in her dinner. And I love to listen some stories from her before bedtime. Both of us enjoy spending time with each other. She is much better from last one week, now she can walk and sit like earlier. She is so sweet and a strong woman who fought battle for her good health. I just love her positive attitude in every situation. She inspires me a lot.

Venue: Greater Noida

I recently visited my grandmother and I believe that my grandmother is one of the most important family members I have and that it is very important that I spend time taking care of her. She makes our life better by just being in it. She is the only grandmother, I have left and she has devoted her whole life to taking care of her family and now that she is older, she should have someone take care of her. I believe that God gave me the personality and tenacity needed to help my strong willed grandmother that doesn't want to admit she needs assistance.

I believe there is one person in your life that people get their strength from and grandma is that person for me. She has taught me to be thankful for what I have because there is always someone around you that has much less.

Sitting beside my grandmother, I absorbed the nuances of her stories including laughter, the challenges, the triumphs depicting an integral part of our shared cultural heritage. She imparted not just facts but the deep emotions woven into the fabric of her experiences. Through her guidance it helped me to navigate complexities of traditions and rituals. In these moments, I found myself not just learning about her past but discovering the essence of who we are as a family and the traditions that bind us together.

DESCRIPTION: On 23rd October, Department of Political Science of Janki Devi Memorial College under the aegis of IQAC conducted an Infographic Poster Making Competition on the topic 'The structure of United Nations'. The competition served as a splendid opportunity for participants to showcase their creative and informative skills. Participants expressed their thoughts by visually representing the hierarchical structure of the UN in an innovative manner. The participants submitted their infographic posters via Google forms. Their posters were analyzed by taking into account the visual appeal, clarity, presentation, and designing. After the careful evaluation, the winners announced were Chakshu, a 2nd year student of BA Programme who secured first position and Faria, a 1st year student of Political Science Honours who secured second position. Lastly, it was a successful and flourishing event for the participants as they acquired more awareness about the structure of UN.

LEARNING OUTCOMES: Students got to know about United nations as a platform for member states to address global issues. Participants developed research and analytical skills as they delve into the various organs and specialized agencies of the UN. Through the creative process of designing an infographic poster, participants enhanced their ability to communicate complex information, promoting clarity and accessibility. This competition encouraged participants to explore the interconnections between different UN bodies, fostering a nuanced comprehension of the organization's multifaceted roles.
