

Euphonie 2019-20

Euphonie, the western music society of Janki Devi Memorial College is based on the concept of performing in various forms such as solos, duets, trios, choir and A-capella. It follows a simple genre and works on songs that are related to the contemporary issues happening around, in order to create awareness among the crowd. Euphonie believes in performing for a cause.

Euphonie has confidence in its members and believes that each one can be its own "Conductor" to hold on to the harmonies and melodies in an Acapella piece.

Performances

Teacher's day

On the fifth of September, Janki Devi Memorial College celebrated the teacher's day by conducting a small ceremony in honour of our teachers. A cultural event was organised by the students of different societies to showcase our appreciation towards all the hard work the teachers put in their job. Euphonie, the western music society of the college prepared a song called 'Stand by Me' by Ben E. King. Sung in three parts harmony, the song delivered the message of how important the support of teachers is in the lives of students. The song came to an end with loud claps and hooting echoing around the auditorium.
