PSO (Program Specific Outcome)

The B.Com (Hons.) course aims at imparting a sound academic background in commerce as well as basic managerial and professional competencies. The seminar helped in enhancing the communication skills, analytical thinking, and leadership skills of students. It also initiated them into real-life aspects of career development like group discussion, presentation, and interviews, thus acquainting them with the gap between theory and professional practices. These experiences help students improve their employability, become resilient in a changing business world, and progress to higher academic or career prospects with confidence.

CSO (Course Specific Outcome)

The subject 'Business Communication' stresses on clarity, confidence, and organized expression, whereas the subject 'Organisational Behaviour' stresses on leadership, team working, and interpersonal effectiveness. The seminar on "Preparation for GD, Presentation & Personal Interview" complemented these course goals through practical exposure to actual communication and selection procedures. Students were taught to effectively express their thoughts in group discussions, present confidently, and answer interview questions with clarity and conviction. The seminar also emphasised the significance of leadership, abstract thought, and problem-solving skills as critical workplace competencies. In connecting theoretical principles with practical advice, the seminar offered good experiential learning, and it empowered learners with skills useful for both academic and future professional success.

PSO (Programme Specific Course)

The Bachelor of Commerce (Honours) program outlines the essential skills, knowledge, and abilities that students are expected to develop by graduation. These outcomes are designed to provide a strong foundation in commerce and prepare students for diverse roles in business, finance, and management.

Students are expected to gain a deep understanding of key commerce disciplines, including accounting, finance, economics, taxation, and business law. The program also offers insights into business processes, management principles, and the regulatory framework governing commercial activities.

Events like jashn-e-hunar allow students to celebrate and present their culture to a large audience, enhancing India's rich cultural heritage and reinforcing unity and harmony. Coordinating such events requires students to work together effectively and efficiently, helping them develop essential management and communication skills. Speaking in front of large audiences and preparing speeches for these events boosts students' confidence, supporting their academic and career success.

CSO (Course Specific Course)

The primary objective of the jash-e-hunar event was to showcase the rich cultural heritage of India while reinforcing unity and harmony. It gave students the opportunity to experience various cultures and learn new and intriguing facts about them.

The subject Ethics and Culture, a value-added course, aims to help students explore the ethical and cultural dimensions of their lives. It provides a forum for students to pause, question their assumptions and beliefs, and become mindful of their thoughts, emotions, and actions. This course offers students an opportunity to express themselves and reflect on their decision-making processes. Furthermore, it cultivates ethical values, encouraging students to contribute to a society based on acceptance, compassion, and justice.
