FRESHERS' 23

Date: 9th January 2023

Time: 11 a.m. onwards

Venue: Girls Common Room, JDMC

The Department of Philosophy organised a Freshers' event, on 9th January 2023, for the new batch of first years. The theme for the event was 'Monochromatic Wardrobe', wherein the first years had to dress up, from head to toe, in one single colour of their choice, and had to bring along as many props as they could of the same colour. Moreover, they were not allowed to choose black, white or gray as their primary colour.

The event started with an introduction of the freshers, who also simultaneously let everyone know of the colour they had chosen, along with their chosen props. This was followed by dances and musical performances by the second and third years. To keep up the fun environment, the first years were also engaged in a game of "Heads Up"; having to guess a word demonstrated by their partner.

To choose between contenders for the position of 'Miss Philosophy', a question and answer session was conducted, wherein the first years had to answer a question picked through a chit, related to philosophy, and the world in general.

The title was bagged by Vani Sharma, who was handed down the crown by Arushi Chauhan, Miss Philosophy 2022. Tannu Luhera, with her impressive choice of colour, and the most number of items in that colour, took home the title of Miss Monochromatic. The runner-up for Miss Philosophy was Divyanshi Singh, and Prakriti was awarded with a special mention.

The event came to an end on a cheerful note, with a vote of thanks by the President of the department, Aditi Singh.

TWO DAY LECTURE SERIES

Dates: 5th November and 6th November, 2022

Time: 5 p.m. onwards

Platform: Google meet

Meeting link: <http://meet.google.com/nmz-mzwb-rsk>

Topics: Rationalism and Empiricism, Kant's Synthetic A Priori

The Department of Philosophy organised a 2-day lecture series by Prof. R. P. Singh (Centre for Philosophy, Jawaharlal Nehru University) on the topics Rationalism and Empiricism, and Immanuel Kant's Synthetic A Priori. The lecture series was organised in online mode through google meet and a total of around 100 students as well as the whole faculty was in attendance.

Day 1 (5th November, 2022)

On the first day of the series started with an introduction to Prof. R. P. Singh, and Prof. Balram Singh who had joined the students.

Prof. Singh covered Rationalism and Empiricism, talking about the philosophers of both stances. He spoke about René Descartes' rationalist concept of "Cogito ergo sum" and its perception in the contemporary world. He talked about one of the most prominent empiricists, John Locke and his concept of "Tabula Rasa", i.e., the mind being a blank sheet of paper and gaining knowledge only through sense experience. He also talked about Spinoza's formulation of the substances and briefly mentioned the Empiricists and their notion. Towards the end, Prof. Singh moved on for a brief question and answer session, addressing the various queries brought up by the students.

The session was joined by around 35 students and faculty members from the department.

Day 2 (6th November, 2022)

On the second of the series, Prof. R.P. Singh was joined by 30 students.

Prof. Singh picked up where he had concluded the previous day and stressed on the concepts of Berkeley and Hume.

He then talked about Kant's idea of Synthetic A Priori, which is hugely significant for his philosophy as a whole. He also spoke about how it provides the essential bridge between rationalist and empiricist epistemology and in doing so it gives probably the best account for the plausibility of metaphysical knowledge that skeptics like Hume had repudiated.

Overall the session provided a thorough understanding of both the topics, that is, Rationalism Vs Empiricism and Kant's Synthetic A Priori. By the end, the session was opened for questions that were then addressed by the speaker. The session was quite fruitful and highly insightful.

The Department of Philosophy, Janki Devi Memorial College, organised a movie screening to celebrate the occasion of India's 75th Independence Day, dated 16 August 2022.

We chose to screen "Raazi", a patriotic movie about an undercover agent's love and loyalty towards her nation. It was a perfect fit to glorify India's independence.

The screening began at 10 a.m. with a short prelude to the movie's theme. An assemblage of around 25 students and teachers, from the Department of Philosophy, joined the screening. The movie was well-delivered and evoked many emotions amongst the audience throughout the screening. Seeing one go through the ethical dilemmas while attempting to make decisions that even contradict their morals, as depicted in the movie, definitely spoke volumes to the viewers. In all, the event was a huge success and was well received by everyone.
