Research IPR Workshop – Day 4 Report (April 4,2025)

OFFLINE

Resource Person: Prof. Amita Charan, Dept. of Commerce, JDMC

The fourth day of the workshop on “Research Methodology, Research Ethics, and IPR” was led by Prof. Amita Charan from the Department of Commerce, JDMC. Her session was insightful and focused on Intellectual Property Rights (IPR), which play an essential role in protecting creative and innovative works.

Prof. Charan explained the different types of IPR, including patents, trademarks, copyrights, and geographical indications. She emphasized how these rights help in recognizing and rewarding the efforts of creators and inventors. The discussion highlighted the importance of understanding IPR in the academic and research context, especially for students and researchers aiming to safeguard their work.

One of the key takeaways from the session was the process of applying for patents and the kind of work that qualifies for patent protection. Prof. Charan also discussed real-life examples and case studies that made the session engaging and easy to understand. Avoiding plagiarism and giving proper credit to sources were also highlighted as vital components of ethical research. Overall, the session was highly informative and provided valuable knowledge that will help participants be more aware of the legal and ethical responsibilities in research.
