Jabberwocky 2020

As part of the College Festival Symphony, Rhetorque the English debating Society held its annual debate Jabberwocky on 9 January 2020. Despite the chill in the air, enthusiastic participants lined up by 8.45 am eagerly awaiting their topics which were given on the spot. The judges for the event were Ms Thingle Hansen, who teaches at Khalsa College and Ms Jaya Yadav who teaches at the English Department at JDMC. The topics were wide-ranging and provocative embracing politics, popular culture, issues of caste and gender, technology and social media. Even the idea of holding a cultural festival during troubled times was debated. Participants spoke both for and against the topic they drew in lots as is a part of the format of the turncoat debate. They also responded to interjections which are always challenging in the turncoat format.

Dr Swati Pal, the Principal, spoke to the students about debating as an effective peaceful means of protest and urged them to unitedly eschew the idea of violence. Ms Jaya Yadav shared useful insights on language use and the format especially with respect to cross-referencing and also encouraged the students to make their references more topical. She announced the prizes as the audience waited eagerly. The first prize was given to Shishir K. Narwal of KMC, the second to Jatin Jha of Hindu College and the third prize was shared by Priyanshu from Jamia Millia Islamia and Tanmay Mehra from MSIT. The best interjector award was won by S. Sriteja , a student of Political Science Hons. at JDMC.

After the prize distribution, the judge Ms Yadav offered to share individual feedback with the speakers and they flocked for advice. The Convenors Dr Sethi, Ms Suparna and Ms Kalita offered thanks and shared their feedback as well.

Jabberwocky provided ample excitement and opportunities to debaters to hone their skills.

Vigilance Debate Competition

Rhetorque: The English Debating Society of JDMC, in collaboration with the National Textile Corporation Limited and the Central Vigilance Commission, organised an Intra- College Conventional Debate Competition on 24 October, 2019 to celebrate the Vigilance Awareness Week. JDMC has been hosting this event in collaboration with NTC for a few years now. The theme chosen by the National Vigilance Commission for this year is “Integrity: A Way of Life.” Keeping this theme in mind, Rhetorque organised a Conventional Debate offering the participants a choice between two motions:

‘This house believes that in present times ethics and integrity have become dispensable’

‘This house believes that conventionality is not morality’.

The judges for the event were: Sidharth Kavadia, Startup Management and Communications Consultant and Personality Development Trainer and Jaya Yadav, Assistant Professor in the Department of English, Janki Devi Memorial College. The event kick started with potted plants being handed over as a token of appreciation to the judges. The Principal outlined the importance of integrity in our personal and professional lives and administered the Integrity Pledge in both English and Hindi. The Integrity Pledge was forwarded to the NSS students and the administrative office as well, underlining how serious the commitment of college is to issues of national and moral import. The Principal encouraged the participants who debated eloquently.

While the judges were finalising the list of winners, the NTC team conducted a fun quiz about the Vigilance Commission and its objectives. This event too, saw enthusiastic participation and the participants enjoyed the chocolates given out as a prize for each correct answer.

The winners of the debate competition were announced by the judges, both of whom gave valuable feedback and tips for improving oratory and presentation to the participants.

Ritigya Malik secured the first position, while the second and third positions were bagged by Vironica and Arshiya Mahajan respectively. The interjection award was given to Sanskriti Jain and Vanshika Bhambri. All the winners received certificates and exciting gifts. All the participants were also given participation certificates.

The Principal, the Conveners Dr Sethi, Ms Suparna and Ms Kalita, the judges and the organising student committee posed for pictures with the winners. All the participants enjoyed light refreshments provided by the NTC. The event was both educational and enjoyable, and reaffirmed the readiness of Rhetorque students to dedicate themselves to the national cause.
